

Setting up Educational Visits On Farms

- Ever thought about hosting occasional visits to your farm from schools or other groups?
- Would you like to know more about CEVAS, but don't want to sign up to the course at the present time?
- Would you like to find out what visits might involve without committing at this stage?
- Would you like to maybe host a visit as part of The Year of Food and Farming in Education, but have no plans at present to get too heavily involved in visits?

Then this Setting up Educational Visits on Farms session might be for you!

This 2 hour course is designed to give you tips and help on how to set up one-off visits to your farm with minimal difficulty. The FACE (Farming and Countryside Education) regional co-ordinator will explain how to set up your farm to take a visit, what schools will be looking for and how you and your farm meet their requirements, the necessary health and safety considerations, and how to make a visit effective and fun too! There will also be an overview of the CEVAS course.

The Setting up Educational Visits on Farms session gives you space to think whether you can get involved without any obligation to do so. Of course, it would be great if you chose to go on and attend a fully accredited CEVAS course, but we recognise that this isn't always for everyone.

Can we encourage you to explore the area of visits, especially in the Year of Food and Farming?

Monday 19th May 2008

9.30 – 11.30 am

Millennium Barn, Lodge Farm, near Shefford

This course is FREE! but places must be booked as numbers are limited

To book a place on the course please contact

Anne-Marie Hamilton, Bedfordshire Co-ordinator Year of Food and Farming 01480 212772

Further information about the course from

Moya Myerscough, FACE Co-ordinator, East of England, 01603 731314